The Jack Layton CHAIR

at Ryerson University

"Teaching at Ryerson is among the happiest times of my life. I'm a big believer in Ryerson."

Jack Layton

First as a Ryerson professor of Politics and Public Administration, then as a Toronto City Councillor, Member of Parliament, and finally as leader of the Federal NDP, Jack Layton inspired Canadians to pursue progressive political change. Justice, fairness, inclusion and hope were his guiding principles for building a better city and a stronger nation. Layton began his political career as a Ryersonian, and by creating this Chair, the University will advance his legacy of political and humanitarian leadership.

The Jack Layton Chair will engage in a variety of activities –including organizing an annual Jack Layton lecture – in keeping with Layton's wide-ranging interests and commitments. Over his career Layton was a passionate advocate for a number of social issues, proposing new solutions for environmental sustainability, livable cities, homelessness, violence against women, homophobia, labour rights, youth engagement, public health, and inclusive democracy. The mandate of the Jack Layton Chair will be to broaden understanding and political capacity in order to effect progressive social change.

Layton's family and the University invite you to support Jack's legacy at Ryerson. Your tax-deductible donation will support the teaching and research activities of The Jack Layton Chair – a fitting tribute to a great Canadian.

Thank you for your generosity.
