

The Canadian Labour Congress Presents

Rights and wrongs:

Presented by Janek Kuczkiwicz of the International Trade Union Confederation, authors of the Annual Survey of Violations of Trade Union Rights.

Trade union and other human rights of workers are under attack in many countries around the world, including Colombia, Zimbabwe, Burma and Iran.

The simple and democratic opportunity to organize, engage in collective bargaining and fight for one's rights without fear of intimidation is being constantly undermined. Janek Kuczkiwicz, ITUC Director of Human and Trade Union Rights, will lead a discussion on how we can fight together to protect and defend workers' rights in other parts of the world and force governments and employers to respect international labour standards and other relevant rights guaranteed under international law.

Learn more and discuss why international solidarity is so important - and why human rights and workers' rights go hand in hand.

When: Thursday, November 15, 2007

Time: 7-9 p.m.

Where: University of Toronto,
Room 610 in the Health Sciences Building
155 College Street, 6th Floor,
Toronto, ON