

INCREASED STAFFING AND CARE WITH DIGNITY RALLY
THURSDAY, MARCH 28 @ 10:30 A.M. AT QUEEN'S PARK

Safer long-term care now

The Ontario government promised in 2003 to enact a minimum standard of care for residents in long-term care homes.

It is 2013 and residents are still waiting.

Residents have waited long enough. It's time for a care standard.

Incidents of resident-on-resident violence in Ontario's long-term care homes are rising.

Loved ones are dying.

Others are being brutally attacked by fellow residents as in the case of the senior beaten on February 22 in a Peterborough long-term care home.

Two weeks later, a resident at a Toronto home was killed and another severely beaten by a resident.

Long-term care workers are doing all they can to keep seniors safe. But chronic under-staffing and a lack of a provincial staffing standard, is leaving people vulnerable.

Join the rally on March 28. Call for change and safer long-term care.
